

For cameras and digital photo frames.

I've loved cameras since childhood when I first got shutter fever. I treasure them for the moments they capture, for the words they create (I'm not a wordy person and I find my photos often speak for me), but most of all for the memories they record.

The digital photo frame is one of my favorite tech gadgets – A portable slide show of special moments. At the office, it's my desktop amusement. Every glance at it = an instant smile on my face, gratitude in my heart. Suggestion: Load one up with photos and give it to someone special. It's truly the gift that "keeps on giving." Remember, a picture's worth a thousand words.
