

For birthdays. I love them. A day when we can have our cake and eat it too! Sure, some are more exciting than others, and some are downright scary. But, at home we've always been big on birthdays. We don't just celebrate each other's "day," we celebrate each other's "month." Our doorbell plays the birthday tune pretty much the whole year. Sort of a reminder that we should celebrate life every day and thank God for the time we get with the ones we love.

I take this opportunity to send a big shout out to my life-long friend, Esther, on her birthday today. Thanks for the years my friend. ♥ And just this past Sunday, our son turned 18 — sixth milestone of 2013 for us — and I am so thankful to have been blessed with life to see it happen.

Daniel Christian, remember, you will have many more experiences, many more moments, and reach many more milestones. Seek your balance.

Friends, may you all be blessed with many and wonderful birthdays.

“Because time itself is like a spiral, something special happens on your birthday each year: The same energy that God invested in you at birth is present once again.”

~M. M. Schneerso

Share this:

- Share on Facebook \(Opens in new window\) Facebook
- Share on X \(Opens in new window\) X
- Share on Pinterest \(Opens in new window\) Pinterest
- Print \(Opens in new window\) Print