

Thankful for good news. We are bombarded by so much negativity in the mainstream media that we can't help feeling hopeless. Fortunately, there are websites bringing us worthwhile stories to balance out the craze. Here are a couple of those websites. I encourage you to check them out:

We should be positive even in the midst of the many negative things that are happening all over the world. And so for those uplifting stories that lighten our days, and those websites that shine a light on good news, I am very grateful.

What are you thankful for today?
