

For one heck of a journey! In 1997, we visited our first national park. What we thought would be just another vacation with the kids, turned into a national park quest. For 20 years, we've been fortunate to visit and explore some of the most beautiful places on Earth. Some of them so awesome and inspiring, we've had to repeat. And even then, they always feel brand new.

What has made this quest immensely special is that each and every time, it's included the four of us. Our countless photos and videos will always help us relive our experiences with fondness, but that'll never beat the feeling of being there together. For that amazing blessing, I am forever thankful. To my gang, my traveling partners, Ray, Lauren, and Danny, I pray we have many more adventures together. I love you guys.

Today, we're celebrating this very special 20th anniversary where else but at one of our favorites. Greetings from the Grand Canyon!
