

For those who nurture my faith. Especially, my husband. When all hell breaks loose and the struggles get real, there is nothing like having people in your life who will step up and reassure you that things will be alright because someone is watching over you. If you're a person of faith, whatever your religion, then you know the importance of being surrounded by people who help nurture that faith so you can get through life's struggles. People who pray with you, even when all is okay, and make you feel grateful.

To be able to share my life with those who keep God at the center of theirs, is one of my biggest blessings. From my family, especially Ray, who, thirty-three years ago, joined me in my Christian walk and now lights our path, to my circle of friends, whose godly connection I feel in my heart. For all of them, each an integral part of my survival, I thank you, Lord.

May you find yourself surrounded by those who carry God in their hearts and wear their faith on their sleeves.

What are you thankful for today?

"Hide yourself in God, so when a man wants to find you he will have to go there first."

-S.L. Alder

"And friends are friends forever

If the Lord's the Lord of them."

-M.W. Smith

Share this:

- Click to share on Facebook \(Opens in new window\)
- Click to share on Twitter \(Opens in new window\)
- Click to share on Pinterest \(Opens in new window\)
- Click to print \(Opens in new window\)