

Life is short, and abundant in fleeting moments. Enjoy your collection of seconds. Love much, hug often, as often as you can. Especially your kids. And remember and cherish the many little moments. And for that, thankfully, there are snapshots.

These kids, can't take 'em anywhere.

[I dedicate this post to the six lives lost in the bridge collapse last week, especially Alexa Duran, the 18 year old FIU student and member of Alpha Xi Delta. That is Lauren's sorority, and so it hit close to home. My heart aches, oh so much, for Alexa's parents. May they soon find solace in their memories of her...and snapshots].

Until next Thursday's post...si Dios quiere.
