

And speaking of milestones, here's another big one -- this Sunday we'll be celebrating our 35th wedding anniversary (39 together). Wow, what a ride! Fortunately for us, we enjoy roller coasters. More important, though, is the fact that the Safety Harness on this wild ride of ours was designed by a Higher Power. If not.... ☐☐

For those of you who have been married a long time (10 years or more by today's standards), I don't need to describe this ride. To those of you who have recently hopped on, or are about to, here's what to expect:

From the get-go, either a fast-launch or a slow and steep up-hill, followed by drops, sharp curves, sudden changes of speed and sometimes even inversions. And there will be tunnels, many.

I can tell you that the admission ticket for this adrenaline-boosting ride is not free. The price is composed of a number of self-less acts. Among them:

Commitment - When you board the ride, fasten your seatbelt...tight.

Compromise - The front seats offer the best views, the back the most airtime. Take turns choosing.

Respect - You got on this ride, you automatically earned it. So, give it.

Patience - If you're willing to stand in line at a theme park....need I say more?

Acceptance - That one second it'll feel like you are on top of the world with the wind rushing through your hair, and the next you may be puking.

Sacrifice - Intensifies the minute the kids hop on your ride. Throw your hands up, keep eyes open.

Love - Because that is what makes the ride worthwhile.

Communication - No matter the ups and downs, say at least one stupid corny joke at bedtime to end the day on a laugh.

Faith - To trust and believe your Safety Harness will hold you tight through the ride, and that there will be light at the end of each and every tunnel.

May your marriages be long, happy and healthy.

For our 35 years, so far, today and always, we are thankful. Happy anniversary, Babe!

What are you thankful for today?

Until next Thursday's post...si Dios quiere.

"Success in marriage does not come merely through finding the right mate, but through being the right mate."

-B. Bruckner

"What greater thing is there for two human souls, than to feel that they are joined for life—to strength each other in all labor, to rest on each other in all sorrow, to minister to each other in silent unspeakable memories at the moment of the last parting?"

-G. Eliot

"The real act of marriage takes place in the heart, not in the ballroom or church or synagogue. It's a choice you make—not just on your wedding day, but over and over again—and that choice is reflected in the way you treat your husband or wife."

- B. de Angelis

Share this:

- Share on Facebook \(Opens in new window\) Facebook
- Share on X \(Opens in new window\) X
- Share on Pinterest \(Opens in new window\) Pinterest
- Print \(Opens in new window\) Print