

When I was a kid, I thought things were always falling from trees. At least that's what my mother made it sound like. "Eso se cae de la mata," she often would say. And I'd be like "Huh, what's falling from a tree?" She used this idiom to convey something was more than obvious, logical or common sense.

Now I find myself using this expression quite a lot. It's difficult to fathom people's thinking these days, you know? What the heck is going on?!

Anyway, a bit random, I know, but today I am thankful for my mother's use of idioms and her lessons therefrom.

What are you thankful for today?

Until next Thursday's post...si Dios quiere.

"The only thing a person can never have too much of is common sense."

-K. Smith

"The mother's heart is the child's schoolroom."

-H.W. Beecher

Share this:

- Share on Facebook \(Opens in new window\) Facebook
- Share on X \(Opens in new window\) X
- Share on Pinterest \(Opens in new window\) Pinterest
- Print \(Opens in new window\) Print