

A post with a twist today. Read through the end.

What is it about thankfulness that can turn a day around...a life around? Turn the intolerable into bearable, change ordinary into extraordinary?

Glad you asked. ☐ I find that gratitude in any form, especially towards God, is a mood changer, and it heals. I have gotten into the habit of muttering to myself “thank-yous” throughout my day. Thank You, I was running late, but traffic wasn’t bad; thank You, everyone’s sick, but the elevator’s empty; thank You, my boss is finally going on vacation!; thank You for the silly joke that had us laughing at bedtime; ooh, thank You for that last box of Oreo ice cream sandwiches....

I have become so aware of the many little things that go right for me every day, and I am acknowledging them. It definitely helps me appreciate the big things even more. Thank You that I was at my parents’ bedside when they each took their last breath (well, some things are monumental). Thank You because when I fell and ate the wall, I didn’t break my face; thank You because I got to celebrate my 61st birthday yesterday....

Anyway, you get the point of this gratitude practice, right? Friends and family, let’s make 2024 a year full of “Thank-Yous.”

What are you thankful for today?

Until next Thursday’s post...si Dios quiere.
