

And just like that! As the year comes to a close, I find myself reflecting on all the usual things—growth, lessons learned, goals reached—and then there’s the other part of me that’s just wondering where all the socks I lost went. Seriously, if anyone has a portal to the Land of Missing Laundry, please let me know. But in all seriousness, as I sit here with a cup of coffee (and, right now, two matching socks), I want to take a moment to express my deepest gratitude to you all.

To those who’ve been here from the beginning—thank you for sticking around! You’ve watched this space evolve, and your support, your thoughts, and your encouragement have meant more to me than words can fully express. I hope something I’ve shared has resonated with you in a way that feels meaningful and real.

So here’s to closing out this year with gratitude and hope, and stepping into the new one with hearts open wide. I look forward to all the growth, learning, and laughter the next year will bring.

Wishing you peace, laughter, and a whole lot of matching socks in the year to come. And here are some New Year’s resolutions: more faith, more hope, more love.

What are you thankful for today?

Until next Thursday’s post...si Dios quiere.

“Year’s end is neither an end nor a beginning but a going on, with all the wisdom that experience can instill in us.”

-H. Borland

“Never be afraid to trust an unknown future
to a known God.”

CCPerez

Share this:

- Share on Facebook \(Opens in new window\) Facebook
- Share on X \(Opens in new window\) X
- Share on Pinterest \(Opens in new window\) Pinterest
- Print \(Opens in new window\) Print