

Relax. Some things in life have a way of working out exactly how they're supposed to, even when they don't go according to our plan. Been there done that.

This one's mostly for my younger readers. The ones still figuring out that detours and delays aren't always setbacks. Pero even for those of us in a different phase of life (aka we've been around the block a few times), this still hits home.

This week, I'm thankful for the reminder that what's meant for you is meant for you. You can't miss it. You can't mess it up. And if something doesn't pan out the way you hoped, it's usually because something better is waiting just around the corner, even if you can't see it yet. I can't tell you how many times the "no" I saw before me was really more of a "not this, but wait for that" kinda thing.

Family and friends, let's trust His timing and be grateful for all those detours that somehow take us exactly where we're supposed to be.

What are you thankful for today?

Until next Thursday's post...si Dios quiere.

"Sometimes when you think you're being buried, you're actually being planted."

-C. Caine

"Not all storms come to disrupt your life; some come to clear your path."

-P. Coelho

"Bloom where you are planted."

#717

Share this:

- Share on Facebook \(Opens in new window\) Facebook
- Share on X \(Opens in new window\) X
- Share on Pinterest \(Opens in new window\) Pinterest
- Print \(Opens in new window\) Print